Mission

- The mission of The Old Stone House of Hasbrouck is to serve and strengthen our community in an historic space where a diverse array of activities creates opportunities for people to come together and connect.

History

- The Old Stone House has stood at the confluence of the Wyncoop Brook and Neversink River for about two hundred years. It has been in continuous use since it was built.
- The Brundage family bought the house around 1890, and added the wooden building which houses the kitchen. A small barn stood where the Pavilion stands today. Like many farm families, the Brundages took in boarders.
- In the early 1900s, the Greenes bought the Old Stone House and ran it as a summer boarding house. Mrs. Greene was famous for the dill pickles she shipped to New York City by railroad.
- In the 1940s and 1950s, Mr. Silverstein bought the house, built the neighboring Hasbrouck Tavern, and had a small store across the road near the riverbank.
- The Old Stone House was owned and operated by the Pauzers between the 1950s and 1976.
- In 1976-77 the Concerned Citizens of Hasbrouck bought the house and surrounding acreage, and today the Old Stone House, with its two-foot-thick yellow and gray fieldstone walls, is thriving and finding a new life as a community center, a home for the arts, and a landmark for visitors to Sullivan County.

Staff

- The OSH is fully staffed by its members and other volunteers.

Serving the Community

- The OSH offers use of its space to non-profits and open-to-the-public programs.
- The OSH has art shows nearly every month. These are exhibits by both local and other member artists. The shows and receptions are free.
- The OSH is available for meetings, classes, plus private and public events, for a nominal donation.
- Donations fund all of our events and programs.

2009-2010

- 100% of events are open to the public.
- Most events held at the OSH are free, sometimes with a suggested donation.
- Almost all our participants are from Sullivan County.
- The OSH has hosted almost 100 events and classes over recent years.
